Copp's Hill Cemetery.

Come, let us turn
Through yon untrodden avenue, and muse
Where rest the ancient dead. Lo, what a throng
Have given their fleshly vestments to the worm,
'Neath these still shades! Here, first the forest sons
Buried their smitten people, ere the feet
Of our pale race invaded them — to die.
— Thou, who dost pore amid yon mouldering stones
So patiently, deciphering the trace
That the dull tooth of Time hath worn away,
Canst tell me where the Pilgrim fathers sleep,
Who with their ploughshare stirred this rocky glebe,
And taught the echoes of the wilderness
The voice of psalm and prayer?
Methinks even now,
From their unnoted sepulchres they warn
Alike the idler and the man of care
How soon to Death's forgotten cell shall speed
The shuttle of their days. For all her sons,
With saddest sigh of hollow-breathing winds,

Soft, vernal tears, and winter's naked boughs,
Our mother Nature mourns.
She tells how vain
The pride that lurks in gorgeous monuments.
The pyramid, the stained sarcophagus,
Betray their trust. Still, there's a life that lives
Amid the mouldering clay, and silent clings
To human sympathies. We speak to them
Who speak no more, — and listen for their words,
Forgetful that the interminable veil
Is drawn between us.
Yet they have a voice,
A tombstone witness to the holy truths
That cannot die; and may our pulseless hearts
Wear worthily the dear Redeemer's sign, — "Yea, saith the Spirit, — blessed are the dead
That die in Him."

Introduction.

THERE are few passages in the Scriptures more touching than the simple and unadorned narrative of the visit of our Lord Jesus Christ to the afflicted family in Bethany, when he met Martha, while her sister Mary "rose up hastily and went out" to the grave of Lazarus, to weep there. It teaches us to hallow the spot where our departed friends repose.

The Hebrew has ever been noted for regarding with veneration the sepulchres of his ancestors — a trait of character connected with love of country, filial affection, and all the endearments of domestic life. To this day, the devout sons of Abraham, wherever in the wide world they may dwell, look forward to a pilgrimage to Palestine, as the great and most sacred act of their lives; and often the aged Jew seeks to lay his bones in Judea, where his fathers sleep. Although a dark cloud now rests on that doomed land, yet numerous are the monuments and sepulchres which environ the holy city; and the "tombs of the kings" and the burial-caves of the patriarchs attract the notice of every traveller, and awaken his sympathy.

The Greeks were no less remarkable for paying honors to the dead. Their obsequies did not cease at the burial. They cherished the memory of their friends with monuments and inscriptions, and sanctified the place of interment with a veneration which might raise a blush in some Christian mourners in our own land. The Via Sacra, from Athens to Eleusis, passed by Ceramicus, their public cemetery, where the ruins of many splendid sepulchres are still extant.

Nor were the Romans less distinguished for this sacred and refined respect for the ashes of their ancestors. They buried their dead near the great highways, so that their memory might be ever before them; from whence comes SISTE, VIATOR— Pause, traveller, at this spot. Lofty sepulchres and marble monuments still survive among the ruins of the Eternal City, on the Appian Way. Whose heart does not burn within him, when he reads in Cicero — when he was quæstor in Sicily — of his discovery of the tomb of Archimedes among thorns and briers, with the cylinder and sphere upon it, which Marcellus had raised to his memory nearly two centuries before?

The preservation of the memory of our ancestors by tombstones and monuments in hallowed spots is honorable to our nature, and conducive to the cultivation of better and holier feelings. We are too apt to forget the lives and characters of those who adorned the circle of another generation; and, amidst the cares of life, and the absorbing pursuits of the hour, friends and connections once dear to society, when they have left us, are too often buried in the grave of oblivion. Every step, therefore, which tends to bring them up to memory, and recall their actions when alive, though it may appear a humble labor in itself, is valuable in its influence.

"It is wise for us to recur to the history of our ancestors. Those who are regardless of their ancestors and of their posterity — who do not look upon themselves as a link connecting the past with the future, in the transmissions of life from their ancestors to their posterity — do not perform their duty to the world. To be faithful to ourselves, we must keep our ancestors and posterity within reach and grasp of our thoughts and affections — living in the memory and retrospection of the past, and hoping with affection and care for those who are to come after us. We are true to ourselves only when we act with becoming pride for the blood we inherit, and which we are to transmit to those who shall soon fill our places." — DANIEL WEBSTER's Speech, Dec. 22, 1845.

With feelings, therefore, which are canonized by the good and great of all countries, and of every age, we may approach the subject matter of this volume of epitaphs, gathered by a humble gleaner in the fields of the dead — the dead who lie in one of the ancient churchyards of the PILGRIMS OF NEW ENGLAND. The favorable reception of the "Inscriptions on the Gravestones in Northampton" is a harbinger that such labor will not be in vain.

The venerable cemetery on Copp's Hill is worthy of the researches of the antiquary; for there many of the fathers of New England were buried. With perseverance and much pains-taking, he has pursued his object, and has collected a large number of epitaphs and inscriptions, some of which are connected with historical events, and others with the early prosperity of this city. Many families, too, are personally interested in this garden of the dead; for there their progenitors repose, where the rains and the frosts are fast obliterating every impression of lithography.

In this manner a record may be handed down to other times, and a permanent transcript preserved, when the marble slab, the heraldic monument, and the fading slate have crumbled into dust. Surely, then, such an enterprise deserves a liberal encouragement. Like ourselves, the ancient Jews wrote their inscriptions on slabs of marble, and placed them upright at the graves of the deceased, when more splendid monuments were not erected. But the stone and the marble have long since mouldered into dust, and few sepulchres can now be identified. There was then no TYPE in existence to give an everlasting duration to their names. The Valley of Jehoshaphat was the great place of burial for the inhabitants of Jerusalem. It extends from the Mount of Olives to Mount Moriah, and is full of sepulchres. In its depths are the Brook Cedron and the Pool of Siloam. Next to the holy sepulchre, no spot in Palestine is more solemnized by sacred reminiscences; yet, with the exception of the tombs of David, Absalom, and a few others, the darkness of oblivion rests on this valley of the dead.

The sweetest remembrances and highest motives to Christian duty are intertwined with, and strengthened by, meditating on our departed friends, and making the home of the dead soothing to the eye and sacred to the feelings; and more especially in a Bible land, in which, when we go to the grave to weep there, we weep not as those who have no hope.

Distinct from the respect and affection we owe to our friends who have gone, there is another consideration of weight — the benefit which a preservation of such memorials may confer. They may enable heirs, in some instances, to prove their descent and trace their genealogy; they may excite the young to emulate the deeds of their honored ancestors; and they teach us, amidst the bustle and business of the hour, that the glory of this world passeth away. They stand like road-guides in the journey of life, casting their long shadows over the whole path to another world.

British heraldry is often connected with British history; and the coat of arms — though sometimes bestowed on unworthy objects — may reflect the lustre of other times on descendants whose virtues and talents have been veiled by misfortune, or buried in undeserved obscurity. What armorial ensigns may be to the living, the faithful and judicious epitaph is to the meritorious dead.

It was by exploring the catacombs, obelisks, and monuments erected to the dead more than forty centuries ago, that Champollion discovered a key to Egyptian history, so happily and eloquently elucidated by George R. Gliddon, Esq., at the Lowell lectures, in this city, a few years since.

A brief account of the celebrated spot where so many of the founders of Boston were gathered to their fathers may not be without interest to the numerous descendants of the deceased, and to the stranger who visits this city.

Boston was called by the Indians Shawmut, — which signifies "living fountains," for this peninsula abounded in springs, — and by the English at Charlestown, Tri-mountain, either from three lofty hills, visible afar off, Beacon, Copp's, and Fort Hills, or from Beacon mountain alone, on which were "three little rising hills" of peculiar form. The weight of historic evidence seems to be in favor of the last derivation. Indeed, Johnson, in his "Wonder-working Providence," compared Beacon Hill, with its two hillocks, to the head and shoulders of a man, and therefore called the place Trea-mont; and William Wood, in his book called "New England's Prospect," printed in 1634, says, "To the north-west is a high mountain, with three little rising hills on the top of it; wherefore it is called Tramount." The same writer says of Boston, "His situation is very pleasant."

Fort Hill, Beacon and Copp's Hills were all distinguished in our colonial history. On Fort Hill, Andros, the tyrant governor under James II., was imprisoned, "bound in chains or cords," in the castle built there about 1640, until he was sent home to England. This ragged cliff, as it then appeared, commanded the harbor. It was anciently called Corn Hill, and was once the site of an Indian fort.

Beacon Hill was in the form of a sugar loaf, 138 feet in height from the water; on the summit was a tall, stout mast, secured by supporters, with treenail steps, and a barrel of tar on the top, forming a beacon. In times of danger this was guarded by a sentinel, ready to light it at a moment's alarm. From this circumstance it was called at first Sentry Hill. The view from this height was very extensive. The beacon to which it owes its permanent name was blown down in a violent storm in November, 1789; and the year following, a Doric column of brick and stone, sixty feet high, surmounted by a large gilt eagle, was erected under a subscription by the Bostonians. On the four sides of the pedestal, some of the leading events of the revolution were inscribed upon marble slabs; — the stamp act when passed and repealed, — the destruction of the tea, — battles of Lexington, Bunker Hill, Saratoga, and surrender at Yorktown, — and the confederation, independence, peace, and forming the constitution were among the subjects commemorated. For several years this column stood as a proud monument of glory, until taken down and the mountain where it stood levelled to enlarge the narrow territory of the growing place.

Beacon Hill was conveyed by the town of Boston to John Hancock, Esq., by deed, August 6, 1811. The lot is described in the deed as six rods square. It was bounded east and west by Bowdoin and Hancock Streets, and north and south by Mount Vernon and Derne Streets; and had Temple Street been laid out at that time, it would have run directly over the brow of this hill, and included the monument; which may give the stranger and the young of this day a more accurate idea of the locality of this eminence; for every feature of its position is now utterly effaced. Stately houses and handsome streets occupy or surround its site, once so memorable as a watch-tower. But the monument, with its pictorial features and historic inscriptions, still exists, recorded in the page of our country's annals, which neither frost, nor rain, nor the innovations of modern improvement can efface — a convincing argument of the benefit which a humble work, like this, on Copp's Hill Burying-ground may render to other times.

It may be well to remark, that Mr. Hancock caused the monument to be removed soon after the execution of his deed from the town, as he himself informed the writer of this introduction. The marble slabs and the gilt eagle were excepted in the purchase. The four slabs were deposited in a recess on the ground floor at the north-eastern part of the State House, where they are annexed to the wall. They are four feet four inches long, by three feet three inches wide. The eagle has been placed over the speaker's chair in the Hall of the Representatives; and there may this mute but national emblem of our glory excite all hearts to preserve our Union inviolate and forever.

Copp's Hill, in 1630, is thus described by Dr. Snow in his History of Boston, p. 105: "The hill at the north, rising to the height of about fifty feet above the sea, presented there on its north-west brow an abrupt declivity, long after known as Copp's Hill steeps. Its summit, almost level, extended between Prince and Charter Streets towards Christ's Church. Thence south a gentle slope led to the water, which washed the south side of Prince Street below, and the north side above Thacher Street as far as Salem Street. Eastward from the church, a gradual descent led to the North Battery, which was considered the bottom of the hill. South-easterly the slope was still more gradual, and terminated at the foot of the North Square, leaving a knoll on the right, where at present stands the meeting-house of the Second Church."

Copp's Hill rose gradually from Hudson's Point, so called from William Hudson, who owned it in 1635. This point and part of the hill were once the property of Joshua Gee, and Gee's noted shipyard lay at the foot of the hill northerly, a short distance from his house in Prince Street. It was afterwards used for a fortification, and called the North Battery. On the hill, Admiral Graves raised a battery of six guns and howitzers, and opened a fire on the American works in Charlestown, on the 17th of June, 1775. Charlestown was set on fire by bomb-shells thrown from this height, and by a body of marines, who landed in the easterly part of that town from the Somerset frigate. The scene has been described by writers with terrific splendor, while the battle of Bunker Hill was kindling that blaze of glory which finally triumphed in the deliverance of an oppressed people, and in the foundation of a great empire.

The first burying-ground, as it is said, laid out in Boston, was the King's Chapel Cemetery; for in the south-west corner of it, Isaac Johnson, the owner of a large tract there, was buried at his particular request. "He was a prime man among us, and made a godly end," Governor Winthrop remarked. Indeed, he was the principal founder of Boston — the fidus Achates of Winthrop, and was looked up to by him and the colonists as a guide. Mr. Johnson was the happy partner of Lady Arbella, whose early and untimely death was deeply lamented. He followed her September 30, 1629, before the name of Tri-mountain was changed to Boston, which was September 7, 1630.

Copp's Hill Burying-ground was the second place of interment. It was purchased by the town for this purpose in 1659. The spot was originally owned by William Copp. On the hill once stood a windmill, which, in August, 1632, was removed from Watertown, because "it would not grind with a westerly wind." It was called from this circumstance Windmill Hill, and afterwards took the name of Snow's Hill; eventually Copp's Hill, from William Copp, became its permanent name. Mr. Copp's realty is thus recorded, page 15, in the "Original Book of Possessions" of the town of Boston, now kept in the archives of the city at the City Hall.

"The possession of William Copp within the Limits of Boston. One house and lott of halfe an Acre in the Mill pond bounded wth Thomas Buttolph south-east: John Button north-east: the marsh on the south-west: and the River on the north-west."

The above is not dated, but there is reason to believe it was entered in 1644.

In the Probate Office for the county of Suffolk, there is a record of the will of William Copp, cordwainer. It was dated October 31, 1662, and proved April 27, 1670. Among the items of bequest are the following: "I give to my daughter Ruth my great kettle, little pot and chaffen dish." — "I give to Lydia my little kettle and great pot." In the inventory is a line appraising "1 hour glass and frying pan, 12 shillings." The amount of the inventory was almost £110 — no contemptible sum nearly two centuries ago.

Copp's Hill was formerly claimed by the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company under a mortgage, which was finally discharged. Shaw, in his "Description of Boston," published in 1817, says that Mr. Copps was an elder in Dr. Mather's church; but erroneously, for he had several children, and it was his eldest son David who filled that office. His wife's name, Judith, is spelt Goodeth on the gravestone, and also in his will.

The foregoing origin of the name of Copp's Hill agrees with Snow's and Shaw's statements; but in the "History of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company," by Zachariah G. Whitman, is the following sentence, where he speaks of Nicholas Upshall: "Close beside him lay the gravestones of his wife Dorothy and friend Obadiah Copp, from whom the hill is named." This must be the blunder of a careless compiler. Yet it shows how little is known of the man whose name is immortalized by this hill, where so many illustrious patriarchs sleep.

Since the appearance of Copp's Hill in 1630, as described by Dr. Snow, the features of the place have undergone a great change. Houses, streets, and wharves environ it; and the only open space is an area of about three acres, forming the cemetery, and including a lot of half an acre or more, bought by the town in 1806, and separated from the original burying-ground by a handsome granite wall. The whole is surrounded by a high, durable, and ornamental fence of iron. The grounds have been laid out in regular alleys and gravel paths, and embellished with a great variety of native forest-trees, some of which are of stately growth. The gravestones of many generations have been raised up, and numerous seats located under shady branches, where the aged and weary may pause, and the mourner find a quiet resting-place. Yet it is to be lamented, that the mounds and hillocks of the dead have been cut down to an unnatural level, and so many stones misplaced to form a geometrical row on the borders of the paths. This mode of restoring and adorning an ancient churchyard is singular: and to speak of it kindly, and not in anger, it certainly was not the act of good taste.

This cemetery is now bounded north by Charter Street, west by Snow Hill Street, and south by Hull Street; the east is bordered by blocks of handsome brick houses, which shut out the picturesque view of the harbor, so attracting in olden time. Indeed, this airy spot, once so rich in scenery, is almost enclosed by buildings. Some years ago, the western margin was cut down nearly twenty feet, and a perpendicular wall erected, making the eastern border of Snow Hill Street. Formerly, before this side was dug down, there was a small rise of the land to the west of some seven feet higher. This formed the brow of an eminence with a very steep and abrupt bank to the shore. From this lofty height the prospect of the harbor, Charles River, and adjacent country must have been expansive and magnificent. Here the British threw up a small fort and erected a battery, from which they directed their fatal shells in the burning of Charlestown.

At the north and north-west there is an open space, through which part of Charlestown heights and the Navy Yard are visible; and by taking a stand a little east from the western boundary, the majestic Obelisk on Bunker Hill becomes visible, looming up in solitary grandeur, and bringing to mind the words of the Great Orator, when the corner stone of this monument was laid by the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, June 17, 1825: "Let it rise! let it rise! till it shall meet the sun in its coming — let the earliest light of the morning gild it, and the parting day linger and play on its summit!"

In the vicinity of the burying-ground, about seventy yards eastwardly from the south-east corner, is Christ Church, the corner stone of which was laid April 15, 1723. A chime of eight bells was added in 1744. Under it is a cemetery of thirty-three tombs. The venerable Dr. Eaton, formerly rector of this church, in a discourse delivered December 28, 1823, gives an interesting history of its origin, and relates an anecdote somewhat singular: the sprigs of evergreen I have Italicized.

"The following fact, which in some ages would have excited the superstitious veneration of ignorance and bigotry, may be worth recording. Some years since, in 1812, while the workmen were employed in the cemetery building tombs, one of them found the earth so loose that he settled his bar into it the whole length with a single effort. The superintendent directed him to proceed till he found solid earth. About six feet below the bottom of the cellar he found a coffin covered with a coarse linen cloth, sized with gum, which on boiling became white, and the texture as firm as if it had been recently woven. Within this coffin was another, protected from the air in a similar manner, and the furniture was not in the least injured by time. The flesh was sound, and somewhat resembling that of an Egyptian mummy. The skin, when cut, appeared like leather. The sprigs of evergreen, deposited in the coffin, resembled the broad-leaved myrtle; the stem was elastic, the leaves fresh, and apparently in a state of vegetation. From the inscription it was found to be the body of Mr. Thomas, a native of New England, who died in Bermuda. Some of his family were among the founders of Christ Church. His remains, when discovered, had been entombed about eighty years. They now rest in the north-east corner of the cemetery, and the stone so long concealed from observation is placed over them." — Shaw, p. 259, note.

Dr. William Walter officiated as rector of this church from 1792 to 1800, of whose death Bishop Samuel Parker, D. D., of Trinity Church, who died in 1804, remarked, that "religion mourns the loss of one of her most obedient children and brightest ornaments." It is worthy of observation that in Christ Church was the first monument ever erected to the memory of Washington in America. Shaw * describes it, "at the east end of the church on the side of the chancel, with a bust well executed by an Italian artist."

The steeple of this church commands a rich prospect. It is said that Governor Gage ascended here to gaze at the conflagration of Charlestown, and the battle of Bunker Hill.

The cemetery on Copp's Hill was much injured during the revolutionary war. From an adjacent battery the soldiers used some of the gravestones for targets, mutilated others, whenever

* Charles Shaw, Esq., author of the "History of Boston," was born in Bath, Maine, and took his degree at Harvard University, 1805, with the second part in his class and a high reputation as a scholar. He studied law with Nathaniel Coffin, Esq., of Bath, practised some years in Jefferson, Lincoln county, and afterwards went to Montgomery, in Alabama, where he was appointed a judge, and died. He was a man of elegant taste, excelled in his knowledge of the Latin language, — being, it was said, among the uncommonly few who could scan Horace with a musical cadence. Though a poet and a fine writer, he only left this little work in memoriam.

a patriotic epitaph thereon excited their ire or envy, and took many to pave the hospital for their invalids. But the worst enemy to the memory of the dead — disgraceful as it may appear — was among our own citizens. For within a few years, some of the slabs — solemnly inscribed as they were — individuals carried off with impunity to cover drains, make foundations for chimneys, lay at the bottom of tombs for coffins to rest on, or at their mouths to close up the aperture.

There was a period in the burial history of our country which reflects no honor on a Christian land; especially when we remember that the Hebrews, Greeks, and Romans, and even the Turks, in their cypress-planted cemeteries, ever honored the ashes of the dead. It seemed not enough to erect temples to God, without regard to any order of architecture, without form or comeliness, looking like steepled barns, and then to use them for unholy purposes and town meetings; but, in too many instances, the very churchyards were neglected, unfenced and uncared for, the graves exposed to horses, cattle, and dogs, not a tree nor a flower suffered to shade or bloom there, and neither walk nor path laid out among the falling, straggling stones, for the pensive mourner to muse over a loved one, or drop a tear over his grave. The sexton appeared to be the only frequent visitant to the spot; the first with his spade and pick to disturb the solitude of the scene after the funeral procession had buried the dead out of their sight and gone home. This is no colored nor fanciful description of hundreds of village churchyards, within twenty years past, on the hills and in the valleys of New England. Are there not, even at this day, such desecrated spots of burial in some of our neighboring cities? Let Worcester and Roxbury answer! If the manes of departed worth could speak from their dishonored graves, they would envy even the fate of Palinurus in his watery tomb, —

"Nudus in ignota, Palinure, jacebis arena."

But, thank Heaven, a change is coming over the land. It is not in Mount Auburn alone, nor at Laurel Hill in Philadelphia, nor on Green Mount in Baltimore, nor in the Greenwood Cemetery in New York, nor in the time-honored churchyard at New Haven, where a more enlightened taste and holier feelings prevail. A degree of veneration is awakened, and a regard for the sanctuary of the grave is more generally felt in the busy world. We have begun to honor the ashes of the dead, and their memory is cherished from the simple green mound, adorned with shrubs and flowers, to the solid granite and architectural marble of the costly tomb. It soothes the heart of the mourner of refined feelings to think, when he walks in the valley of the shadow of death, that his beloved ones are not forgotten.

It is remarkable that, amidst such desecration of these ancient memorials on Copp's Hill, so many epitaphs escaped destruction, and can be identified; for in addition to losses thus sustained, very many gravestones have been removed, with the remains they guarded, to churchyards in distant places, there to be preserved with reverence.

A singular instance of depravity, however, did occur in Copp's Hill Burying-ground. Here once rested the bones of Thomas Hutchinson, — father of Governor Hutchinson, — one of the greatest benefactors of this city and country, and also the bones of his father Elisha, son of the famous Edward Hutchinson, who fell in an attack of the Indians at Quabaog, in Brookfield, and a descendant from the celebrated Ann and her husband, Governor William Hutchinson, of Rhode Island. Their bones are now scattered before the four winds of heaven! Their tomb has passed into the hands of strangers. Over their beautiful coat of arms their name has been expunged, and the name of Thomas Lewis inserted!

One would think that decency — if there were a drop of modest blood to curdle round the heart at such a thought-of baseness — would at least have discovered some veneration for our departed patriots, if the sanctuary of the tomb, which all nations have respected, had no influence. Even the poor Indian, by whom the sepulchral mounds in his fatherland have ever been regarded with the loftiest feelings of reverence, would have raised his tomahawk to cut off the sacrilegious hand which dared to violate the home of his honored dead.

An infamous custom has prevailed among some of the sextons in this city of speculating in tombs. Finding a poor widow, or dilapidated heir, having a share or fractional interest in some old tomb under his care, the grave-digger, aware of the absence or death of the principal owner, and that "a living dog is better than a dead lion," purchases it for a trifle, seizes the whole by prescription, or threats of the law, calls it his own, erases the family name, clears out the sacred relics which lie there, and then makes a trade of his mortmain right, by selling a berth for dead strangers in the city, at eight, or ten, or twelve dollars apiece, as the case may be. This has been repeatedly done on Copp's Hill, King's Chapel, and other burial-grounds in the city.

Nor is this all. After the tombs have been filled up by the remains of strangers, their corpses have been carted out of town in the night season, or buried in a hole dug at the bottom of the tomb, pounded down in one horrid, hideous mass, and covered over, to make way for more death-money. An aged gentleman of respectability, residing near Copp's Hill, told me he has seen loads of broken-up coffins removed from tombs thus desecrated; and a lady in this city recently remarked that within fifteen years she was in that cemetery, and there saw a collection of coffins heaped up for removal; on the fragments of one of which skin and hair adhered — the hair black and glossy — the long, fine hair of a female; and she shuddered and turned away from the spectacle!

In King's Chapel Burying-ground, there is a tomb on the north side, near a window of the room of the Massachusetts Historical Society, where the sexton, lately deceased, thus used it for speculation, erased the family name on the great brown stone tablet, and put his own in its place.

Such sacrilege is outrageous. It almost makes the blood boil with indignation. Is the law against profanity of the dead a mere spider's web, made by the weak to favor the wicked?

What would be the feelings of the tender mother, or affectionate daughter, in the days of their mourning, should it be told them, "The grave is no resting-place for the dead; the sacred ashes of a husband or father will one day be scattered by the hand of the sexton, and a greedy, unprincipled grave-digger will claim your ancestral tomb for a mere pittance, and turn it into a mercenary charnel-house to suit his purposes"?

If there be any doubt of the facts here stated, let the records of the Probate Office in Boston be searched for twenty years past. It will there be seen how many sextons have left a legacy of tombs in their will, as a profitable investment to their heirs. Names could be mentioned, but I forbear. Will not "A Sexton of the Old School" point his heavy artillery against this abomination? It ought to be investigated and denounced, so that no speculator in tombs and bones would dare to show his head among a church-going people. Let the city authorities look to this matter, and put a stop forever to a species of merchandise, next only to that of Burking for the dissecting room!

Copp's Hill Burying-ground is a locality full of reminiscences. It is pleasing to observe, that the city authorities have sought to preserve the garden of the dead, and put it under the care of a faithful person. It has been furnished with a Cochituate fountain, and has become a favorite place of promenade to citizens in the northern part of the city, remote from the refreshing walks of our beautiful Mall. It is worthy of the stranger's notice; more especially if he feel interested in the antiquities of this city. He will see tombs with heraldic insignia of other times carved on the tablets; those of Hutchinson, Mountford, Goodrich, Gee, Clark, Lee, and Greenwood will arrest his eye. Nor can he pass unobserved the venerable, time-touched sepulchres of those Reverend and revered men, Andrew and John Elliot, Increase, Cotton, and Samuel Mather, learned doctors of divinity, scholars of note and pastors of celebrity in their day, with whom the history of New England is, and forever will be, associated. Here their remains have long slept, unconscious of the thunders which shook this hill in 1775, and of the tread of thousands of visitors to this spot, and of the voices of many a playful school, which for nearly three generations of national prosperity have echoed near their silent mansion of death. Friend and foe, female loveliness and infantile beauty, here lie side by side; in a word, here is the dust of many a daring, lion-hearted, devout first settler in the town of Shawmut, now the expanding city of Boston.

He will see one gravestone where Grace Berry lies beneath, singularly shaped, and marked by the bullets of a British foe before the evacuation of Boston, when unholy hands used it for a target; in another spot is the slab, which designates the ashes of Nicholas Upshall, of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, a public-spirited man, persecuted for religious opinions among a religious people; and a little farther off stands a memorial to Captain Thomas Lake, an early settler, and large proprietor in Maine, "an eminently faithful servant of God," who was slain by the Indians, at Kennebec, August 14, 1670.

While meditating among the tombs in this shady necropolis, he may observe in the south-west corner a large and stately monument of granite, over a capacious sepulchre, dedicated to seamen of all nations, by the Rev. Phineas Stowe, pastor of the First Baptist Bethel Church in Boston, 1851 — a generous and highly honorable testimony of respect to that noble and too little valued class of our citizens. And from this spot let him, as he muses from grave to grave along these gravelled walks, turn to the north-east angle of the cemetery, where he will see a marble pyramid over the tomb of Ellis, and by its side, within the iron railing, a wide-spread weeping willow. Siste, viator. Traveller, pause; for that willow casts no vulgar shade. It is an exotic. It grew up from a shoot taken from that lonely tree which hangs over the deserted grave of the great Napoleon at St. Helena; and it needs no poetry of the heart to feel, as we gaze upon the umbrage, as if every sea breeze from the eastern world touched its leaves with sorrow, and called forth a train of mournful reflections at the fate of that wonderful man!

The compiler of this book of Epitaphs has spared no pains to verify the facts he has published. He has sought the aged, and listened to their early recollections; he has caused many an old gravestone, buried beneath the sod, to be dug up and carefully examined; and he has descended into vaults, and from thence brought up hidden treasures. The work he has done will be valuable, because it will tend to perpetuate names and dates, which a few years more would render it difficult to resuscitate, and which the antiquary of another generation might explore in vain among the fugitive landmarks of tradition. What Old Mortality accomplished with hammer and chisel on the tombstones of the Covenanters he has endeavored to perform with spade and pen.

He only asks encouragement as a reward of labors which the circumstances of his life forbid him, in justice to his family, to bestow gratuitously. Should this volume meet with the approbation of the liberal descendants, whose ancestral memorials he has attempted to preserve by the imperishable power of the press, he will soon offer to the public a similar work on King's Chapel Burying-ground — the materials of which are in a state of preparation.

The assistance kindly afforded him by John P. Bigelow, Esq., Mayor of Boston, he would gratefully acknowledge; and also that of many other gentlemen, — some of high standing, — whose names he would gladly mention; but a selection would seem invidious, and to enumerate them all might encroach upon the patience which this long, but he hopes not useless, preamble may have wearied.

Boston, August, 1851.

[The compiler is indebted to the kindness of John H. Sheppard, Esq., for the valuable Introduction to this volume.]

To the Memory of
Mrs. Elizabeth Brown,
Wife of
Mr. Nicholas Brown,
who died Dec. 11, 1803,
Aged 35 years.

When the last scene — the closing hour — drew nigh,
And earth receded from her swooning eye,
Tranquil, she left this transitory scene,
With decent triumph, and a look serene ;
By faith she fixed her ardent hopes on high,
In Jesus' merits, and in him did die.
So shall her grave with rising flowers be drest,
And the green turf lie lightly on her breast.
Here shall the morn her earliest tears bestow,
Here the first roses of the year shall blow,
While angels with their silver wings o'ershade
The ground now sacred by her relics made.
Then rest in peace beneath this sculptured stone,
Till Jesus' trumpet calls thee to his throne.

Sacred to the Memory of
MR. JOHN BANKAMP,
who died March 21st
1 8 0 5 , aged 34 years.
He was a native of Prussia, on his return from the West Indies to his native country. It may with truth be said of this worthy strandied the Death of the Righteous Man.

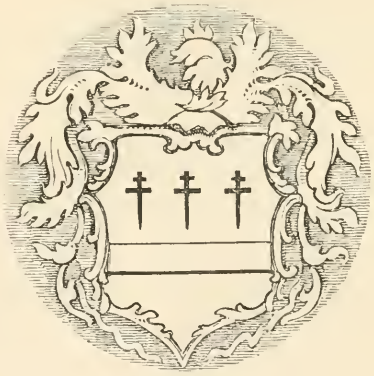
Is Love.



Erected by

ISAAC DUPEE,

Grandson to G.

Aged LXXV.

August, 1846.

"My name from the palms of his hands
Eternity will not erase;
Impressed on his heart, it remains
In marks of indelible grace.
Yes, I to the end shall endure,
As sure as the earnest is given,
More happy, but not more secure,
The glorified spirits in heaven."

"Adieu, my friends, forever, ever gone,
Her happy soul has put full glory on;
The tenderest ties could never her detain,
But O, our loss is her most happy gain.
Gentle her manners were, her taste refined,
Her face an emblem of her heavenly mind;
Her speech sincere, and open as her heart,
Her conversation did delight impart.
Though young, she listened to the voice of truth,
And trod a Savior's steps in early youth;
Calm and serene, she yielded up her breath,
And even triumphed at the approach of death."

MARINERS'
TOMB.

This Tomb is Dedicated to
SEAMEN OF ALL NATIONS,
BY
PHINEAS STOW,
Pastor of the First Baptist Bethel Church, Boston, 1851.

"The dead shall be raised."

Deposited in the Mariners' Receiving Tomb,
EMILY,
Wife of Rev. Phineas Stow, of Boston, who suddenly departed this life
May 18, 1851, aged 42 years.

The tribute of respect
paid to the departed by seamen and friends is very consoling to the bereaved husband and his motherless daughter.
Her devotion to the welfare of mariners gave her the appropriate appellation of
THE SAILOR'S FRIEND.
Her excellent judgment made her a safe adviser in temporal and spiritual things. Cheerfulness and frankness were prominent features in her character. Monuments more durable than marble or brass are erected to her memory in loving hearts.

"She rests from her labors."

"Her sun went down while it was yet day."

No parting kiss, no dying words to cheer,
But years of love, enshrined in memory dear,
Shall wake devotion on affection's shrine,
While musing on thy life and theme divine.

"Not lost, but gone before."

The remains of these four Seamen have also been deposited in the Mariners' Tomb.

HERE LIES BURIED THE BODY OF

MAJOR JOHN RUDDOCK, ESQ.,

Deceased September 2d, 1772, aged 59 years and 2 mo.

He was in commission of the Peace and Justice of the Court and County of Suffolk 13 yrs;
He commanded his Majesty's North Battery in Boston
13 yrs;
And was selectman for the same town 9 yrs.

Could a heart that felt, and a hand that relieved, the miseries attendant upon humanity —
Could the truest patriotism, equally superior to the frowns of power and the rage of party, which with invincible constancy asserted and defended universally (for he was a citizen of the world)
the rights of mankind —
Could undeviating integrity in every office
which he dignified by holding, joined to the most impartial dispensation of justice —

In fine,
Could extensive virtue or distinguished worth

rescue from the tomb,

Reader,

thou hadst not been told

Here lies Ruddock.

Depart!

Imitate his virtues,

and with him

merit the eulogium of thy country.

Time may efface this monumental stone,
But time nor malice can his worth dethrone
For villains living oft may buy a name,
But virtue only swells posthumous fame.

In Memory of
CAPT CALEB HAYDEN
died on the 2d day of July Anno Domini 1795
in the 57th year of his age

"The monumental stone, by many read,
In pensive numbers, praise the silent dead;
But learn that virtue softens every pain;
To live in glory, IMITATE the MAN
Who died to save, and dying, can restore
Your rescued souls to praise HIM evermore."

Appendix.

According to Betham's Baronetage, Captain Lake was of the ninth generation in descent from John Lake, of Normanton, in Yorkshire, Esquire, who was of the fifth generation from Sir William Caley, of Owby, Knight, only son of Hugh de Caley, of Owby, County of Norfolk, (who died in 1286,) by his wife, Agnes, daughter and heiress of Hamo de Hamsted.

Captain Lake was son of Richard Lake, of Irby, in Lincolnshire, and brother of Sir Edward Lake, LL. D., Baronet, Advocate General of the Kingdom of Ireland, Chancellor of the Diocese of Lincoln, &c., who died July 18, 1674, aged seventy-seven, and lies buried in the Cathedral of Lincoln, leaving his title and estate to his nephew, Thomas, son of Capt. Lake. John, a brother of Sir Edward and Capt. Thomas, was living in Boston in 1676. Capt. Lake's wife, who survived him, was Mary, daughter of Hon. Stephen Goodyear, Deputy Governor of New Haven Colony, who died in London, 1658. He came to New England, a man of fortune, and was extensively engaged in commercial pursuits. He was associated with some of the earliest English proprietors of lands in New Hampshire and Maine. While attending to the affairs of the "Kennebec purchase," in 1676, he was slain by the Indians. His sons were educated in England. Thomas, born in Boston, Feb. 9, 1656, an Utter Barrister of the Honorable Society of the Middle Temple, London, died 22d May, 1711, aged 55, and lies buried in the Middle Temple, London.

Capt. Lake's daughter, Anne, became the wife of the Rev. John Cotton, A. M., of Hampton, N. H., by which marriage alone, it is believed Lake has any descendants in this country.

Mr. Cotton was son of the Rev. Seaborn Cotton, of Hampton, N. H., grandson of Rev. John Cotton, of Boston, and of Governor Simon Bradstreet; great grandson of Rev. Simon Bradstreet, of a wealthy Suffolk family, minister of Horbling, in Lincolnshire, sometime of Middleburg, in Holland, and of Hon. Thomas Dudley, first Deputy Governor, and third Governor, of Massachusetts. Mrs. Cotton, after the death of her husband, married the Rev. Increase Mather, D. D., of Boston. Her gravestone, in the ancient burial-place at Brookline, bears the following inscription: "Madam Anne Mather, relict of y^e^ Dr. Increase Mather, formerly wife of Rev^d^ Mr. John Cotton; died at Brookline, March 29, 1737, Æ. s. 74." Sir Biby Lake, Baronet, son of Thomas of the Middle Temple, inherited the title and estate of his grand-uncle, Sir Edward.

The English branch has intermarried with the families of Winter, Crowther, Turner, King, Macbride, Webb, and others. Of this descent is Sir Willoughby Thomas Lake, K. C. B., Admiral of the White, in the British navy, Hon. Sir James Lake, Baronet, &c.

The New England branch has, in several generations, intermarried with the families of Gookin, Whiting, Upham, Thornton, Tracy, Lee, Wingate, Rogers, Jackson, Dearborn, Coffin, Hale, Storer, Bowles, Chadwick, &c.

John Mountfort. (p. 3.)

John Mountfort, founder of tomb No. 7, was brother to Jonathan Mountfort. They were the sons of Edmund Mountfort, who fled from England, in 1656, to Boston, in consequence of political offences, and who is referred to in "Dean & Smith's Journal," published in Portland, as an "educated merchant." In 1693, he married Mary Cock, granddaughter of Nicholas Upshall. In 1697 he was a member of the "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company." He died, January 4, 1723. His descendants still reside in Boston, New York, and Louisiana.

Mary Hart. (p. 13.)

Mrs. Hart, born at Lynn, 27th of May, 1699, was the daughter of Moses Hudson, (a descendant of Thomas Hudson, an ancient colonist at Lynn,) who, the "12th of November, 1685," married Sarah Collins, descended from "Henry Collins, of Lynn;" of whom Lewis, in his History of Lynn, says: He "embarked in the Abigail, of London, June 30, 1635; lands were granted to him in 1638; in 1639 he was a member of the Salem court; and in 1645, one of the selectmen of the town. He was born in 1606, and buried, February 20, 1687, at the age of eighty-one years. His wife, Ann, was born in 1605. His children were, Henry, born 1630; John, born 1632; Margery, born 1633; and Joseph, born 1635. He was associated with John Hathorne in 1662, in defending the town against a prosecution by William Longley. The first monthly meeting of Friends in Lynn was held at the house of Samuel Collins, July 18, 1690. There were only five Lynn men present."

Capt. Ralph Hart.

Capt. Hart was a well known and much-esteemed citizen of Boston. A copy of one of his commissions, following, is not without social and political interest, by contrast with the present time: —

Province of the Massachusetts-Bay.

L. S.

WILLIAM SHIRLEY, Esq;
Captain-General and GOVERNOUR in Chief, in and over His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay in New-England, &c.

To Ralph Hart, Gentleman, Greeting.

BY virtue of the Power and Authority, in and by His Majesty's Royal Commission to Me granted, to be Captain-General, &c. over this His Majesty's Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, aforesaid; I do (by these Presents) reposing especial Trust and Confidence in your Loyalty, Courage and good Conduct, constitute and appoint You the said Ralph Hart to be Lieutenant of the foot Company in the Town of Boston under the Command of Captn Samuel Rand, in the Regiment of Militia, within the County of Suffolk, whereof Jacob Wendell Esq; is Colonel.

You are therefore carefully and diligently to discharge the Duty of a Lieutenant in leading, ordering and exercising said Company in Arms, both inferiour Officers and Soldiers, and to keep them in good Order and Discipline; hereby commanding them to obey you as their Lieutenant, and your self to observe and follow such Orders and Instructions, as you shall from time to time receive from Me, or the Commander in Chief for the Time being, or other your Superiour Officers for His Majesty's Service, according to military Rules and Discipline, pursuant to the Trust reposed in you.

Given under My Hand & Seal at Arms, at Boston, the eleventh Day of February 3 o'clock, In the sixteenth Year of the Reign of His Majesty King GEORGE the Second, Annoq; Domini, 1742.

W. SHIRLEY.

By His Excellency's Command,
J. WILLARD, Secry.

Boston, Febry 28, 1742.

Sworn before JACOB WENDELL.
WILLM. DOWNE.
DAN. HENCHMAN.

In 1754, Lieut. Hart was Commissioned Captain of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. His great grandfather, Samuel Hartt, born in England, about 1622, settled in Lynn, 1643–50, and was living in 1680, when his son, Samuel Hartt, Jun., was married, January 4, to Elizabeth Ingalls, a granddaughter of Mr. Edmund and Frances Ingalls, who came from Lincolnshire, in 1629, and were the first English people known to have been inhabitants of Lynn. Mrs. Hartt died, November 2, 1681, and he married his second wife, Abigail Lamberd, or Lambert, June 9, 1684. She was the daughter of Michael Lambert, who died at Lynn, August 18, 1676. Captain Ralph Hart, the son of the last marriage, was born at Lynn, the 12th of June, 1699. He married Mary Hudson, Nov. 27, 1722. Their daughter Mary was the wife of Mr. Joshua Bowles.

Joshua Bowles. (p. 11.)

Mr. Bowles, born at Roxbury, May 3, 1722, was a resident of the north end of Boston, and a deacon of the church there. He is described by one who remembers him, as of about five feet, eight inches in stature, of compact and muscular frame, and dark hair; as silent, and of reserved manners, "magnifying" his office in the church by a godly life and conversation, and honoring the precepts and examples of his fathers, particularly in the constant observance, during his life, of family devotions. He was brother-in-law to the Hon. Benjamin Lynde, of Salem, chief justice of the Province; and son of Major John Bowles, Esq., of Roxbury, by his wife, Lydia, daughter of Col. Samuel Checkley, Esq., of Boston, born at Preston Capes, in Northamptonshire, and sister of Rev. Samuel Checkley, of Boston.

Major Bowles was son of Hon. John Bowles, Esq., of Roxbury, by his wife, Sarah, daughter of the Rev. John Eliot, of Newton, and granddaughter of Rev. John Eliot, the "Apostle to the Indians." His son, Capt. Ralph Hart Bowles, served in the revolutionary army during the whole war of independence, and afterwards settled at Machias, Maine; where he held various civil offices, as clerk of the courts, justice of the peace, &c.* He married Hannah, daughter of Rev. Josiah Crocker, of Taunton, of the lineage of the Leonards, Cobbs, Thachers, Gorhams, Gov. Carver, Gov. Hinckley, and Hon. John Howland, of Plymouth.

Mrs. Bowles was distinguished for her energy of character, excellence of temper, and refinement of manners, peculiarly fitting her for usefulness in the frontier settlement at Machias. She died, July 10, 1847, aged 82, at Roxbury, and was interred at Mount Auburn, in the burial-place of her son, the late Stephen Jones Bowles.

Samuel Bowles, Esq., editor of the "Springfield Republican," is a descendant from Mr. Joshua Bowles.

* Born in Boston, March, 1759; died at Machias, Sept. 1813.

Parkman Family. (pp. 27, 38.)

An honored and distinguished branch of this family was Samuel Parkman, Esq., of whom, and of his father, the Rev. Ebenezer Parkman, of Westborough, Mass., we find the following notices in the Christian Examiner, of June, 1824:—

"Died, in Boston, June 11, Samuel Parkman, Esq., aged seventy-two years; one of the most distinguished and eminent merchants; who raised himself to great opulence, without losing any thing of the moderation and simplicity of his original character and manners, or his strong attachment to the retired habits of domestic life. He was peculiarly domestic in his feelings, devoted to his family and friends, and singularly successful in the difficult duty of family government and discipline. Affectionate, yet firm, by judicious mixture of decision and kindness, he acquired, and maintained to the last, an unusually powerful influence with a numerous and most attached family. The loss of his counsels and affection is irreparable. He had been a professor of Christianity forty-three years, and deacon in the Second Church twenty-three years.* To the interests of that church he was zealously devoted, and gave frequent proofs of his attachment, which will long be remembered with gratitude. In his last disease, when informed that it must be fatal, he received the intelligence with

* Mr. Parkman was born Sept. 11, 1752. He was the son of Rev. Ebenezer Parkman, first minister of Westborough, Mass.; who was graduated at Harvard College, in 1721; became a member of the New North Church in Boston, in 1723; was ordained in Westborough, then called Chauncy Village, in 1724; and after a faithful and devoted ministry of nearly sixty years, died Dec. 9, 1782, in the eightieth year of his age. He was honored among the most respectable clergymen of his day, devoting himself wholly to the duties of his calling. Besides some other publications, his Convention Sermon, preached in 1761, may be regarded as an honorable testimony of his enlightened and charitable, as well as fervent spirit.

perfect composure, and acquiesced without a murmur in the appointment of Heaven. Desirable as life continued to be, — and to few was it more so, — he surrendered it at once. He spoke with humility of his imperfections and unworthiness, and offered a fervent prayer that they might be forgiven, and that his attempts to do his duty might be accepted; declaring his trust to be in the mercy of God through Jesus Christ. His death was thus consistent with his profession, and brought consolation with it."

Sarah Brown. (p. 53.)

Mrs. Brown, born at Ipswich, August 21, 1696, was daughter of Jonathan Cogswell, son of William, and grandson of John Cogswell, a London merchant, who settled in Ipswich, in 1635. Her mother (married, March 24, 1685) was daughter of Francis Wainwright, an eminent merchant of that town, and sister to Hon. John Wainwright. Miss Cogswell was married, in 1723, to Mr. James Brown, an opulent farmer of Ipswich, who died in the spring of 1741, leaving an estate of £6500. Mrs. Brown died in Boston, while visiting the family of her son-in-law, Mr. Timothy Thornton, (son of Ebenezer,) who, about 1773–4, moved to Ipswich, and there died, 4th September, 1787, aged sixty-one. The gravestone of her daughter, Eunice, at Ipswich, bears the following inscription: "Here lies what was mortal of Mrs. Eunice Thornton, wife of Mr. Timothy Thornton, who died Sept. 13th, 1784, in the 55th year of her age." They left two sons, viz.: Thomas Gilbert, the first son, born in Boston, August 31, 1768; married, November 26, 1793, Sarah, daughter to Hon. Thomas Cutts, of Saco, and died, March 24, 1824; their son, J. B. Thornton, married Eliza, daughter of Hon. Daniel Gookin, of Northampton, N. H.; and daughter, Anna Paine, married Gov. John Fairfield, of Saco, late United States Senator from Maine. James Brown, the second son, married Ruth, daughter of Mr. Samuel Sewall, of York, county of York, and died, in 1825, without issue.

Timothy Thornton. (p. 56.)

Mr. Thornton was the son of the Rev. Thomas Thornton, of Yarmouth, Mass. He was born about 1647: a principal citizen of Boston, where he was admitted a freeman, May 15, 1672. He was several times chosen one of the "Commissioners" of Boston — a court of record created by the Acts of 1651 and 1654. Says Judge Sewall, date April 4, 1690, "This day, Capt. Theophilus Frary, Adam Winthrop, Mr. Jno. Clark, Timo. Thornton," and others, "are chosen Commissioners for y^e^ town of Boston." December 17th, 1690, Mr. Thornton, Major Elisha Hutchinson, Major John Phillips, Capt. Penn Townsend, and Mr. Adam Winthrop, were appointed by the Legislature a committee to issue bills of credit to pay the debts of the recent French and Indian wars. This was the first paper currency in Massachusetts. Mr. Thornton was several times elected "selectman" of Boston; in 1693, he, with Ephraim Savage, Samuel Checkley, and Edward Bromfield, were chosen. In 1693, Mr. Thornton, Penn Townsend, and Edward Bromfield, were chosen Representatives from Boston. Mr. Thornton was a Representative in 1694 and 1695.

Judge Sewall wrote in his journal, "1714–5, January 10th, snowy day. Mr. Gee sends his son to invite me to Dinner tomorrow at his house." "Tuesday, January 11th, went thither, where din'd Dr. Incr. & Dr. C. Mather, Mr. Bridge, Mr. Wadsworth, Mr. Thornton, Mr. Jno. Marion, Deacon Barnard, Mr. Ruck, Capt. Martyn, Mr. Hallowell. It seems it was in remembrance of his landing this day at Boston after his Algerine captivity. Had a good Treat. Dr. Cotton Mather, in returning Thanks, very well comprised many weighty things very pertinently." "1714–5, Feb. 2d, Went to y^e^ Meeting at Bro^r^ Thornton's; read out of Mr. Shepard on the Virgins — They y^t^ were ready went in. Sung clauses out of y^e^ 45th Psalm."

All his children were by his first wife, Experience, who died March 23, 1694. They were Mary, born 1674, April 2; Thomas; Elizabeth, b. Nov. 17, 1677, m. Major Thomas Wade, Esq., April 4, 1700; Ann; Timothy, b. May 6, 1681; Catharine, b. April 16, 1683, m. Isaac Russel, of Boston; Experience, b. Feb. 23, 1687, m. Jonathan Coolidge, of Watertown; Ebenezer, baptized by Dr. Mather, Jan. 12, 1690, m. Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. Thomas Gilbert, of Boston; died in Watertown, about 1749. The following inscription is from the gravestone of his wife, in the ancient burial-ground at Watertown: "Mrs. Elizabeth Thornton, who departed this life June 10th, 1740, Æt. 37 years."

Mrs. Sarah Thornton was the second wife, and widow of Mr. Timothy Thornton, of Boston. Her name before marriage is unknown.

Jonathan Mountfort. (p. 81.)

Jonathan Mountfort, founder of tomb 59, brother of John, was a man of liberal education, a physician and apothecary, and resided for many years at what was called "Mountfort's Corner." He was independent in his means, and eccentric in his habits. In 1719, he was one of the seceders from the New North Church, and among the founders and building committee of the "New Brick," or "weathercock" church, for whom he was treasurer. His descendants in the male line are extinct; in the female line, they are merged with the Greenough and Pitts families.

The Mountfort family coat of arms, as represented over the tomb of Jonathan Mountfort, belonged to Hugo de Montfort, a Norman, who, in 1066, commanded the cavalry of William the Conqueror at the battle of Hastings.

This name is known in the "History of England," during the reigns of William I., Henry II., Henry III., John, Edward I., Edward III., Edward IV., and Henry VII. It is especially referred to in "Dugdale's History of Warwickshire," a copy of which is in the library of Harvard University, which represents the same coat of arms as those over the tomb, and gives an elaborate and authentic pedigree of the family, from Turstain de Montfort, 1030, father of Hugo, as above mentioned, to Simon Mountfort, 1633, father of Edmund, and grandfather of John and Jonathan Mountfort, founders of tombs Nos. 7 and 59.

It is also referred to in "Collin's Peerage," "Burke's Extinct Peerage," "Wiffan's History of the House of Russell," and other works.

Grant Family. (p. 107.)

The space enclosed within an iron railing near the centre of the cemetery, and which contains the tomb of the Grant family, was not originally a part of the cemetery. This small canton of land was purchased by the first proprietor, [see deed below,] Mr. Gee, of the owner of a field adjoining the cemetery, his lady wishing to have a last resting-place apart from the multitude. It became the property of the Grant family, by purchase, four generations back, and is now owned by Deacon Moses Grant, to whom the interest in it of the other heirs of his father, the late Deacon Moses Grant, was conveyed, on his decease. The property being, as has been remarked, held in fee, and under no restraint as to its use, a dwelling-house, or any other structure, could be erected on the spot; and, what is more, the proprietor has a right of way over the cemetery, which right of way is by common law construed to mean a path broad enough for cart wheels to pass over. We need not, however, apprehend that the worthy proprietor or any of his descendants will avail themselves of their private rights, to the inconvenience of the public.

This enclosure holds the remains of three generations of the Grant family. Moses Grant, Esq., who was buried here in 1817, aged seventy-three, was deacon of Brattle Street Church; and Samuel Grant, Esq., who was buried in 1784, aged eighty, was deacon of the old North Church, (Dr. Andrew Eliot's.)

The late respected Deacon Moses Grant was in revolutionary times a very ardent patriot. He was one of the destroyers of the tea, and one of the party who were engaged in the bold and successful attempt to remove the two pieces of cannon by night to the American lines, and who narrowly escaped the pursuit of the British guard.

One of our elder citizens remembers seeing a London newspaper of 1774, which contained a letter from Boston, written during the troubles, and referring to some of the principal actors. It had this passage: "There is Deacon Grant, a member of the Cadet Company — a fiery deacon indeed!" The patriotic composition of that company, at the time of these events, may be inferred from the fact that its commander was Colonel John Hancock!

Mariners' Receiving Tomb. (p. 128.)

The Mariners' Monumental Receiving Tomb, in Copp's Hill Cemetery, Boston, was procured by contributions from seamen and their friends.

The noble crew of the U. S. sloop-of-war Albany presented Phineas Stow, pastor of the Baptist Bethel, Boston, with fifty-two dollars, for this worthy object; and Martin Woodworth, a generous sailor, collected three hundred dollars from the merchants in a few days. The enterprise met with their cordial approval.

It may not be improper to state, that many seamen who have been found dead in the docks, or have been accidentally (as we say) killed by falling from the yard-arm of a ship, have been buried by the city without any religious services whatever. We would cast no reflections upon the worthy citizens of Boston; for in the arrangements of the city for burying the poor, seamen have shared, as well as others who have died away from home and kindred. The writer, to give mariners a more appropriate burial, has procured from Coroners Pratt and Smith the remains of seamen, and incurred expenses, which have been cheerfully paid by seamen and others. Public attention has been called to the proper interment of sailors, and the call has been nobly responded to. The writer's father was a sea captain, his only brother is also a shipmaster, and his relatives are engaged in navigating the ocean. It is natural that tender emotions should be awakened in his bosom for the stranger who finds an early grave far from his native home.

The smiles of an approving Heaven have attended this work of humanity. It has called into exercise the better feelings and sympathies of those who are directly engaged in a business, the tendency of which is to shorten human life. It is cheering that, in this world of strife and tumult, there is a common ground on which all may stand.

Beautiful shells are to be cemented on the shaft of this monument. Many sailors and their friends have given moaning ocean shells, which may sing a requiem over the sailor's resting-place.

The disciples of John the Baptist "came and took up his corpse, and laid it in a tomb." (Mark vi. 29.) So we wish to lay in a tomb the mortal remains of the toil-worn sailor, who often dies homeless, friendless, and penniless. Seamen should have a "memorial" in the city of Boston — a city which has been enriched by commerce — the fruits of the toil and sufferings of mariners. Boston will not wrong the ocean children. The proprietor of the Woodland Cemetery, in Malden, has kindly given a large lot, where the bodies can be deposited when the receiving tomb shall be full. A monument will be erected there in memory of seamen.

The first three bodies deposited in the Mariners' Tomb belonged to three different nations — England, Sweden, and America — and occupied three different positions in the service — captain, officer, and sailor, — but no distinctions are known there; they rest peacefully side by side.

"It is their watch below."

A female, a true friend of seamen, was the fourth body deposited in the tomb. Three days before her death, she saw the monument that was to be erected on this tomb. It was completed the very day she was struck with death. Her husband was called upon by a gentleman to go and see the monument, when he informed his friend that his wife was dying. It was like an electric shock. The history of this tomb is thus mournfully interesting to him, who, with his departed companion, for years devoted himself to benefit the long-neglected sailor.

The reflex influence of efforts to respect and benefit humanity will not fail to bless the living. The author of this work has generously given ten copies of the book to the sailor's cause. By his request, the writer of the above has given the foregoing particulars, which may not be devoid of interest. Mr. Bridgman's work will meet with the sympathy and approbation of all who are connected by ties of kindred and affection with the sleeping denizens of Copp's Hill Burying-ground. "The memory of the just is blessed." (Prov. x. 7.)

William Pitt Greenwood; born May 10th, 1766; died May 10th, 1851, on his eighty-fifth birthday.

Rev. Thomas Thornton. (p. 162.)

The Rev. Thomas Thornton was one of the noble company of Nonconformists who were ejected or silenced by the Act of Uniformity, St. Bartholomew's Day, August 24, 1662. — Mather's Magnalia, Book III. fol. 4. He was the successor of the Rev. John Miller, and third pastor of the church in Yarmouth, from about 1663 to the autumn of 1693, or spring of 1694, when he removed to Boston, and resided with his children during the remainder of his life, his son, Timothy, contributing liberally for his support and comfort in his declining years. In 1691, the Rev. John Cotton was associated with him in the ministry, to relieve him from the cares too heavy for his advanced age; and after his removal to Boston, his people still cheered him with frequent tokens of affectionate remembrance. His fellow-sufferer under the Act of Uniformity, the Rev. Thomas Walley, for a while lived in Yarmouth, but was soon settled in the ministry, at Barnstable, the adjacent town.

A glimpse at Mr. Thornton's life in Boston, and an interesting exhibition of the character and habits of our great and good men of ancient times, occur in the following extract from the diary of Chief Justice Samuel Sewall: "Aug. 13, 1695. We have a fast Kept in our new chamber. Mr. Willard begins w^th^ prayer and preaches from 2^d^ Chronicles, xxxiv. 27. Mr. Allen prays." "P. M. Mr. Bayly begins with prayer, preaches from Luke i. 50, and then concludes with prayer. Sung y^e^ 27 Ps. 7–10, [the version in use was the New England Psalm-book.] I set Windsor tune, and burst so into tears y^t^ I could scarse continue singing. Mr. Thornton was here, but went away when Mr. Allen was at Prayer. Mr. Cook and Mr. Addington here. Mr. Serg^t^ was diverted," &c. "I appointed y^s^ day to ask God's Blessing after y^e^ death of my dear mother, and in particular to bless Sam. w^th^ a Master & calling, and bless us in our new house. The Lord pardon and doe for us beyond our hopes contrary to our Deserts."

Judge Sewall visited Mr. Thornton during his last illness, and recorded minutely the incidents of his sickness and death. "Feb. 15, 3 p. m. Mr. Tho: Thornton dies very quietly, w^ch^ Mr. Gee acquaints me w^th^. Is very near 93 years old."

He was born in 1609, the son of John Thornton, of Bidforth, in Yorkshire, born in 1581, living 1612, and grandson of Thomas Thornton, by Helen, daughter to Percival, son to the Lord Lumley. His mother was Grace, daughter of Thomas Wythers, of Copgrave.* The Christian merchants, Henry Thornton and John Thornton, of England, were of the same family.

Mr. Thornton's children were, Mary, who married Judah,

* Herald's Visitations, Yorkshire, 1530, 1584, 1612.

son of Rev. Mr. Anthony Thacher, brother of Rev. Peter Thacher, Rector of St. Edmunds, in Salisbury, in England, for nineteen years; Elizabeth, who married Mr. Joshua Gee, of Boston, and afterwards the Rev. Peter Thacher, of Milton; Thomas; Anna, married to Dr. Nathaniel Hall, of Yarmouth, and afterwards of Hingham; Theophilus; Timothy, who married Experience ——, and Priscilla, of whom Mather gives an account in his Magnalia.

Nicholas Upshall. (p. 187.)

Nicholas Upshall was the twenty-third member on the roll of the "Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company." In 1637, he owned property from Hanover Street to the water, on the north-east side of Richmond Street, which was laid out in 1636. He left his property to his two daughters — wife of William Greenough, and the wife of Joseph Cock. He was grandfather to the wife of John Mountfort, founder of tomb No. 7. He was fined £20, and exiled by the government of "Massachusetts colony," for bribing the keeper of Boston jail to supply two Quaker women, then in prison, with food, otherwise they would have starved to death; and afterwards, for expressing his abhorrence in relation to the inhuman and tyrannous acts of Governor Endicott and others towards the Quakers, — although he was of much influence, property, &c., and also a member of the church, — he was banished the colony, and resided six years in Rhode Island. On his return, he furnished a room in his house for the free use of the Quakers. The "History of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company" says, in reference to Nicholas Upshall, "Property, moral worth, public services, wife, children, friends, cannot preserve a man from the ruthless fangs of religious persecution. The respectable Quakers of the present day, (Lynn,) have recently reclaimed the remains of their former brethren from the old Quaker burial-ground, lest the rapacious hands of speculation should trespass further. Why do they not redeem the ashes of those who may be considered among the first martyrs of their sect?"

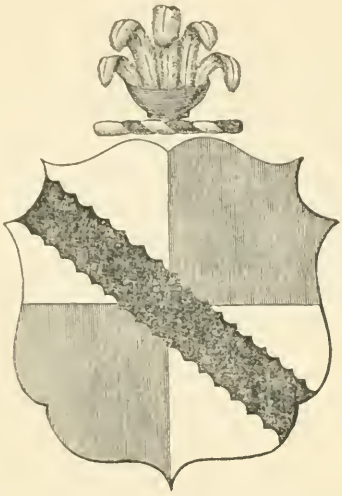
Eleazer Pratt.

Eleazer Pratt (interred in the tomb of Eliot, Kimball, and Pratt) was a lineal descendant from Phinehas Pratt, one of the first planters of New England. He was born in Cohasset, and came to Boston at about the age of sixteen years. He resided here until the day of his death, August 21, 1849, when he died with the Asiatic cholera, at the age of sixty-four years and seven months.

Nature endowed him with a remarkable constitution. Previous to his death, he was never but once obliged to call for a physician, and his prospect for a long life to come was very promising — his ancestors, and his seven brothers and sisters having attained an age far beyond his; the brothers and sisters now remaining very hale, at an average age of seventy-seven years.

With a good constitution, he also possessed a sound mind, which he constantly exercised in the study of mankind. He died in the full belief, that when his earthly tabernacle was dissolved, he should have a building, of God, eternal in the heavens.

Eleazer Pratt's sister, Abigail, is now eighty years of age; she never took any medicine. Last winter, she walked from Boston to Somerville, a distance of four miles, without much fatigue. His brother, Benjamin, aged upwards of eighty-two years, went into the woods last winter, and assisted in cutting his supply of wood for the season.



Loring, Cushing, Spear, and Gray,

Descendants of Deacon Thomas Loring, and his wife, Jane Newton, who came from Axminster, Devonshire, England, Dec. 22, 1634, with their two sons, and settled at Hingham, New England, in 1635. 3. Josiah, born in 1637; and married Elizabeth Prince, daughter of Elder John Prince, of Hull. Their children were, Jane, born Aug. 9, 1663; married Samuel Gifford, of Sandwich. Josiah, born Nov. 22, 1665. Samuel, born 1668, died 1674. Jonathan, born April 24, 1674; married Elizabeth, daughter of Richard Austin, of Charlestown. Job, born Feb. 22, 1669; married Rebecca, name not known, and settled at Rochester, Mass. Elizabeth, born 1672; died 1743.

4. Benjamin, baptized Jan. 9, 1642; married Mary, daughter of Matthew Hawke, of Hingham, Dec. 8, 1670. Their children were, Benjamin, born 1671, who married Anna, daughter of Isaac Vickory, Oct. 8, 1702. John, born about 1673; married Elizabeth, daughter of John Collier, Feb. 10, 1709. Mary, born 1675; married James Gould, Feb. 8, 1709.

Samuel, born 1680; married Jane, daughter of John Collier, April 19, 1716. Matthew, born Oct. 19, 1684; married Experience, daughter of John Collier, Dec. 23, 1714.

The decease of the common ancestor is thus recorded in Hobart's Diary: "1631, April 1. Thomas Loring, sometime a deacon to the church at Hingham, died at Hull." His widow, Jane, had the improvement of the estate until her decease, Aug. 25, 1672. By her will, dated July 10, 1672, she appointed her son Thomas executor. Among other legacies, she bequeathed to her son Thomas a volume called "The Jewell of Contentment, by Jeremiah Burroughs. Printed at London, in 1645." To Hannah, wife of Thomas, a yellow pair of bodices, stomacher, her best neck clothes, &c.; to her son, John, a volume called "The Covenant of Grace, by Obadiah Sedgwick." To Mary, wife of John, a suit of head linen, her best mantle, a kersey waistcoat with gold lace, and other articles; to her son Benjamin, a volume called "The True, or Sincere Convert, by Thomas Sheppard, of London, discovering the small number of true Beleevers, and the Great Difficulty of Saving Conversion." Also her interest in a "Catch," or vessel at sea. To Mary, wife of Benjamin, her riding suit, pillion cloth, hood and gloves, a suit of head clothes, serge gown, and other articles. To her son Josiah she gave twenty pounds of wool, to clothe his children. Rev. Zechariah Whitman was a witness to the will; proved, Boston, Oct. 6, 1672. The agreement of the four sons of Deacon Thomas Loring, in the division of their father's estate, Oct. 30, 1672, is in the probate office of Suffolk.

Heraldry. — Arms of Sir Petrus Loring, granted in the reign of Henry III.: Shield — quarterly, argent and gules, a bend engrailed, sable, for Loring. Crest — five upright feathers, standing in a bowl, argent.

From "Memorials of the Cushing Family, of Hingham and Scituate, New England, descendants of Daniel Cushing, Esq., and Hon. John Cushing, sons of Deacon Matthew Cushing, of Hingham, Norfolk County, Old England, in 1638. By J. S. Loring."

Peter Cushing, of Hingham, Norfolk county, England, who, according to Deane, held large estates in Lombard Street, London, had two sons, Theophilus and Matthew, who came to New England. The former, born in 1579, sailed in the ship Griffin, in 1633, in company with Governor Haynes; resided on his farm, and finally settled in Hingham. He was blind for twenty-five years, had no family, and died March 24, 1678. The younger son, Matthew, born in 1588, married Nazareth, daughter of Henry Pitcher, Aug. 5, 1613, and had four sons, and one daughter, who married Matthias Briggs, May, 1648; all natives of Hingham, Old England. He embarked with his whole family and his wife's sister, widow Frances Riecroft, in the ship Diligent, of Ipswich, three hundred and fifty tons, John Martin, master; arrived at Boston, Aug. 10, 1638, with one hundred and thirty-three passengers, among whom was Robert Peck, teacher, and settled at Hingham, in that year, where he had a grant of land, and became a deacon of Rev. Peter Hobart's church. He died Sept. 30, 1660, leaving a will. His widow died Jan. 6, 1691, aged ninety-five years. But two of his sons left descendants, Daniel and John, the former of whom was a justice of the peace, and the third town clerk of Hingham.

1. Daniel, married Lydia, daughter of Edward Gilman, Jan, 19, 1645. Their children were, Peter, born 1646, who married Hannah Hawke, 1685. Daniel, born 1648, who married Elizabeth Thaxter, in 1680. Deborah, born in 1651, who married Benjamin Woodbridge, 1679. Jeremiah, born in 1654, who married Hannah Loring, in 1685. Theophilus, born in 1657, who married Mary Thaxter, in 1688. Matthew, born in 1660, who married Jael Jacob, in 1684.

Daniel Cushing, Esq., died Dec. 3, 1700.

2. Hon. John, married Sarah, daughter of Matthew Hawke. Their children were, John, born in 1662, who married Deborah Loring, in 1688. Thomas, born in 1663, who married Deborah Thaxter, in 1687. Matthew, born in 1664, who married Deborah Jacob, in 1689. Jeremiah, born in 1666, who married Judith Parmenter, in 1693. James, born in 1668, who married Mary Barrell, in 1712. Joshua, born in 1670. Sarah, born in 1671, who married Dea. David Jacob, in 1689. Caleb, born Jan. 6, 1672, who married Elizabeth Cotton, in 1698. Mary, born 1676, died 1698. Deborah, born 1674; married Thomas Loring, 1699. Joseph, born in 1677; married Mercy Pickles, in 1710. Benjamin, born in 1678; became a merchant of Barbadoes.

The arms of the Cushing Family are quarterly, gu. an eagle, argent. Gules, three right hands somewhat torn. A canton chequery or. and az. 1563.

Descendants of George Spear. He was an early inhabitant of Dorchester, and was admitted freeman in 1644. He soon removed to Braintree, now Quincy, where he died. His wife's name was Mary, who died Dec. 7, 1674. He was probably the ancestor of all of the name in New England. Their children were, George, who married Mary Deerings, 1669. John, born 1710; married Mary Arnold, 1736. He had the dwelling-house lately occupied by Mr. Nightingale, barn, and two acres of woodland. Mary, born 1712; married John Saunders, 1735. She had twenty-six acres of land at Horse Neck. Benoni, born 1714; married Elizabeth Newcomb, 1760. He had twenty-seven acres of his father's land. John Spear's daughter Prudence, born 1737, married Daniel Baxter, in 1755.

2. George, son of George 1st, married Mary Deerings. She died 1678. They had Mary, 1676. Ebenezer, 1678, who died same year.

3. Ebenezer, son of George 1st, married Rachel Deerings, 1679, and lived in Braintree. They were members of the church in the south parish, in 1711, and many of their descendants have lived there. He died, March, 1719. They had Ebenezer, 1680, who married Mary Copeland, 1718, and second wife, Mary Tower, 1727. Mary, born 1682; married Ephraim Jones, 1708. Samuel, born 1684, who married Rebecca. Rachel, born 1686; married Cornelius Thayer, of Braintree, 1717. Joseph, born Feb. 25, 1688; married Ann. She died, April, 1719. He married second wife, Mary Collier, of Hull, Dec. 12, 1720. He was ancestor of the Spears of Hull. Nathaniel, born 1693. Abigail, born 1695; married Nathaniel Littlefield, 1718. Benjamin, born 1698; married Sarah Niles, 1722. Deering, born 1700; married Jemima Thayer, 1726. Son Nathaniel, administrator.

4. Richard, son of George 1st, married, and had seven children, all of whom were baptized, April 11, 1698, in Braintree, viz.: Rebecca, Benjamin, Richard, John, James, Mary, and Deborah.

5. Nathaniel, son of George 1st, married Hannah Holman, 1689, and lived in Braintree, where he died, leaving a will, Sept. 12, 1728. His wife died, 1725. Their children were,

Hannah, born 1690, who married Ebenezer Nightingale, 1711. Nathaniel, born 1692; married Thankful. John, born 1694; married Ann Perry, of Milton, 1718. Mary, born 1697; married Lemuel Gulliver, 1717. Lydia, born 1713; married Richard Bracket, 1733.

The Gray Family, of Boston. Edward Gray, an opulent merchant of Boston, arrived in this country, from Lancashire, England, in 1686. He served an apprenticeship with Mr. Barton, as a ropemaker, at Barton's Point, then a cow pasture. He hired Barton's Point and ropewalk of Mr. Barton, for ten dollars per annum. He was married to Susanna Harrison, by Pen Townsend, Esq., 1699; had Harrison, 1711; who married Elizabeth Lewis, 1734. Treasurer of Massachusetts Province, and left Boston with the British troops in 1776, as did his grandson Harrison, who died at London, 1830, aged ninety. Harrison senior had also, John, born 1755. Lewis. Elizabeth, 1746; married Samuel A. Otis, father of Hon. H. G. Otis. Edward senior had Edward, 1702; married Hannah Bridge, 1727; had Edward, 1728. Sarah, married Jeremy Green. Anne, born 1705; married Increase Blake. Persis, born 1706. Bethiah, born 1710. Susannah, born 1712; married Col. Joseph Jackson. John, born 1713; married Mary Otis, Barnstable. His second wife was Hannah Ellis, married by Dr. Colman, 1714; a niece of Dr. Colman's wife, who sent for her from England, with a view to this marriage, owing to her warm affection called the lump of love; and had Ellis, 1716; married Sarah Tyler, by Rev. William Welsted, 1739. Ellis was colleague pastor of Second Church, Boston; had Hannah, 1744; married Thomas Cary, late of Chelsea, one of whose daughters was wife of Rev. Dr. Tuckerman. He had also, Ellis, 1745. William, born 1747. Mary, daughter of Edward, senior, married Nathaniel Loring, 1739, a grandson of Elder John Loring, of Hull. Also, William, 1724; married Elizabeth Hall, daughter of Capt. Stephen Hall. Benjamin, born 1726; married Mary Blanchard. Thomas, a bachelor. Judge Hall, of Boston, married Sarah, daughter of Ellis Gray, Jr. Judge Wilson, of Washington, and Dr. Bartlett, Boston, married Hannah, daughter of Ellis Gray, Jr. Edward, senior, died 1757, aged eighty-four. Dr. Chauncy said of him, in a funeral sermon, "He was unexceptionable, unenvied, except for his goodness, universally well spoken of, both while living and now he is dead." By his will, dated Feb. 12, 1753, (witnessed by James Otis, the patriot,) Mr. Gray gave to his son John the ropewalks, seven hundred and forty-four feet in length, by twenty or more feet wide, a brick warehouse adjoining, with yarn-house, knotting-house, dwelling-house, and land, standing the whole length of the present Pearl Street, and on Cow Lane, now High Street and Atkinson Street, appraised at one thousand pounds. The whole estate was appraised at about £5500. By the inventory, he had ten colored slaves, appraised at about £246.

William Gray, son of Edward, senior, had Martha Hall, 1760; married Dr. Samuel Danforth. Stephen H., born 1761. William, born 1762. Edward, born 1764; married Susanna Turell, who had John. Rev. Frederick Turell, who married Elizabeth P. Chapman, and had also two daughters. John, born 1768. Elizabeth Saunders, born 1769; married Jacob Eustis. Hannah Stillman, born 1796. Ann Greenough, born 1800; married Rev. George Whitney. Thomas, born 1806, who was a physician and a poet.

Hiram Smith. (p. 197.)

These infant children of Hiram and Sarah Smith were buried in the family vault, No. 98. Their remains have been removed to Mr. Smith's tomb, in Moss Path, Mount Auburn Cemetery. The record is from a mourning piece, wrought in childhood, by the eldest surviving daughter.

The other children of Mr. Smith are now living: Sarah Eliza, wife of Dr. Nathaniel B. Shurtleff, of Boston; Maria Augusta S. Smith; Caroline H., wife of Perez B. Howard, of Wareham; and Almira P., wife of Wesley P. Balch, of Boston.

Sigourney. (p. 137.)

The name of Sigourney is found among that band of Huguenots who sought refuge in New England from the persecutions that succeeded the revocation of the edict of Nantes by Louis XIV. The ancestor of the American branch of that family, Andrew Sigourney, or, according to the French orthography, Andrè Sejournè, came to Boston, with other emigrants, in the winter of 1686, and died in that city, in 1727, at the age of eighty-eight. He brought with him his son Andrew, a boy of thirteen, who married Mary Germaine, in 1696, and died in Boston, at the age of seventy-five.

The Sigourneys belonged to those exiles from France, who, with their pastor, Pierre Daillè, formed a settlement at Oxford, in Worcester county, on the banks of a stream which still retains the appellation they gave it, of French River. The vestiges of a fort erected by them, on a commanding height, are distinctly visible. In consequence of an inroad and massacre by a neighboring tribe of Indians, they relinquished their colonial establishment, and returned to Boston about the year 1700, where they and their descendants have become incorporated among its most worthy and respected inhabitants.

The pastor, Daillè, beloved almost to adoration by his peaceful and pious flock, died in 1715. Two lowly graves in the Granary burying-ground bear the inscription of the "Reverend Pierre Daillè," and "Seyre, his wife." He was succeeded in his sacred office by the Rev. Andrew Le Mercier, author of an ecclesiastical history of Geneva. The earliest place of worship of this interesting people occupied the site of the present Universalist meeting-house in School Street, and is designated in the records of those times, as the "French Protestant Church." These, like other Huguenots who took refuge in different parts of our country from the persecution of a tyrant king, by their industry and patience, cheerful endurance of privation, and unswerving, yet not austere piety, mingled salutary elements with the character of this new western world.

Joseph Warren.

Major General Joseph Warren was born in Roxbury, in 1741. His father was a respectable farmer in that place, who had held several municipal offices to the acceptance of his fellow-citizens. Joseph, with several of his brothers, was instructed in the elementary branches of knowledge at the public grammar school of the town, which was distinguished for its successive instructors of superior attainments. In 1755 he entered college, where he sustained the character of a youth of talents, fine manners, and of a generous, independent deportment, united to great personal courage and perseverance.

On the 18th of April, 1775, by his agents in Boston, he discovered the design of the British commander to seize or destroy our few stores at Concord. He instantly despatched several confidential messengers to Lexington. The late venerable patriot, Paul Revere, was one of them. This gentleman has given a very interesting account of the difficulties he encountered in the discharge of this duty. The alarm was given, and the militia, burning with resentment, were, at daybreak on the 19th, on the road to repel insult and aggression. The drama was opened about sunrise, within a few yards of the house of God, in Lexington. Warren hastened to the field of action, in the full ardor of his soul, and shared the dangers of the day. While pressing on the enemy, a musket ball took off a lock of his hair close to his ear. The lock was rolled and pinned after the fashion of that day, and considerable force must have been necessary to have cut it away. The people were delighted with his cool, collected bravery, and already considered him as a leader, whose gallantry they were to admire and in whose talents they were to confide.

On the 14th of June, 1775, the Provincial Congress of Massachusetts made him a Major General of their forces. He was at this time president of the Provincial Congress, having been elected the preceding year a member from the town of Boston.

Several respectable historians have fallen into some errors in describing the battle in which he fell, by giving the command of the troops on that day to Warren, when he was only a volunteer in the fight. He did not arrive on the battle-ground until the enemy had commenced their movements for the attack. As soon as he made his appearance on the field, the veteran commander of the day, Colonel Prescott, desired to act under his directions; but Warren declined taking any other part than that of a volunteer, and added, that he came to learn the art of war from an experienced soldier, whose orders he should be happy to obey. In the battle, he was armed with a musket, and stood in the ranks, now and then changing his place, to encourage his fellow-soldiers by words and example. When the battle was decided, and our people fled, Warren was one of the last who left the breastwork, and was slain within a few yards of it, as he was slowly retiring. His death brought a sickness to the heart of the community, and the people mourned his fall; not with the convulsive agony of a betrothed virgin over the bleeding corpse of her lover, but with the pride of the Spartan mother, who, in the intensity of her grief, smiled to see that the wounds whence life had flown were on the breast of her son, and was satisfied that he had died in defence of his country.

This eminence has become sacred ground. It contains in its bosom the ashes of the brave who died fighting to defend their altars and their homes.

Within a year after his death, Congress passed the following resolution:—

"That a monument be erected to the memory of General Warren, in the town of Boston, with the following inscription:—*

IN HONOR OF

JOSEPH WARREN,

MAJOR GENERAL OF MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

HE DEVOTED HIS LIFE TO THE LIBERTIES OF HIS COUNTRY,

AND IN BRAVELY DEFENDING THEM, FELL AN EARLY VICTIM IN THE

BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL,

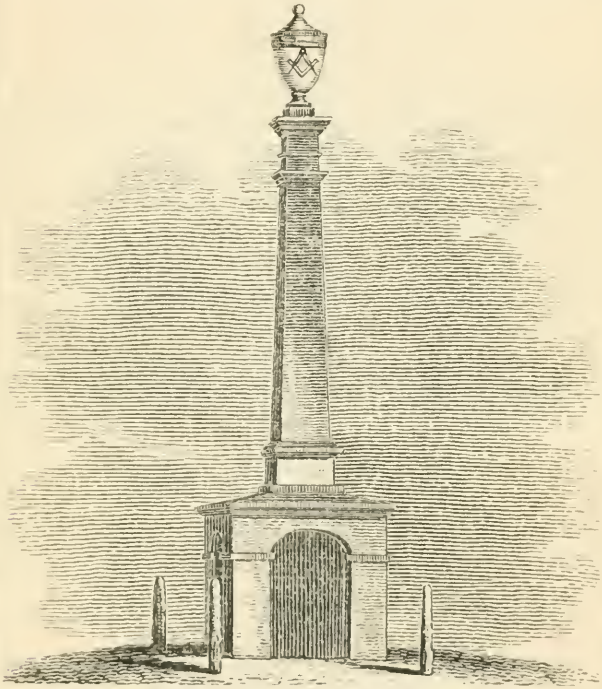
JUNE 17, 1775.

The Congress of the United States, as an acknowledgment of his services and distinguished merit, have erected this monument to his memory."

The preceding memoir is taken from the Monthly Magazine, published in Boston, June, 1826, and is the production of Samuel L. Knapp, Esq.

The following monument stood near the site of the present Bunker Hill monument:—

* To the lasting honor of the Congress of '76, the above resolution was passed, but, after the lapse of three quarters of a century, we ask, Where is the monument? A petition is now in preparation, to present to the next Congress, praying them to carry out the patriotic resolve of their predecessors.



Erected A. D. 1794, by King Solomon's Lodge of Free Masons, constituted at Charlestown, 1783,

IN MEMORY OF

MAJOR GENERAL WARREN

AND HIS ASSOCIATES,

who were slain on this memorable spot, June 17, 1775.

"None but they who set a just value upon the blessings of liberty are worthy to enjoy her.
In vain we toiled, in vain we fought, we bled in vain, if you, our offspring, want valor to repel the assaults of her invaders!"

Charlestown Settled, 1628; Burnt, 1775; Rebuilt, 1776.
The enclosed land given by Hon. James Russell.

John Warren.

The personal appearance of Dr. Warren was most prepossessing. He was of about middling stature, and well formed; his deportment was agreeable, and his manners, formed in a military school, and polished by intercourse with the officers of the French army, were those of an accomplished gentleman. An elevated forehead, black eyes, aquiline nose, and hair turned up from the forehead, gave an air of reflection and dignity, which became a person of his profession and character.

His remains are deposited in a tomb erected for the purpose by his family, in the cemetery of St. Paul's Church, in Boston. In the same sepulchre rest the relics of his friend and brother. — Thacher's Medical Biography.

Timothy Bigelow. (Worcester.)

In memory of
TIMOTHY BIGELOW, ESQ.,
Commander of the 15th Massachusetts Regt.
In the Revolutionary war with Great Britain.
Born August 12, 1739.
He died April 4, 1790,
Aged 50 years.
Here lie his Remains.

The above-mentioned Timothy Bigelow was an officer of great merit and distinction in the Revolution. He commanded a battalion of Arnold's forces in the chivalrous expedition through the wilds of Maine to Canada, and was taken prisoner in the attack upon Quebec, on the night when Montgomery was slain. After being exchanged, he was again in active and responsible service for several years. The regiment which he commanded was raised mainly by his own exertions, in the central parts of the state. He left five children, viz.: Anna, Timothy, Lucy, Rufus, and Clara. Anna married Dr. Abraham Lincoln, of Worcester, (brother of the first Governor Lincoln,) who was afterwards a member of the executive council. Lucy became the wife of Luther Lawrence, of Groton, a lawyer, who subsequently was a prominent member of the legislature, and mayor of Lowell. Rufus became a merchant, and settled in Baltimore, where he died, unmarried, in 1814. Clara married her cousin, Tyler Bigelow, of Watertown, a lawyer, and left several children, among whom are Clarissa, the wife of Theodore Chase, a merchant and ship owner of Boston; Charles H. Bigelow, now of Lawrence, late a captain in the army; and George Tyler Bigelow, a justice of the supreme judicial court. Timothy, the eldest son of Col. Timothy Bigelow, was born April 30, 1767, graduated at Harvard in 1786, was admitted to the bar in 1789, and became a distinguished jurist and legislator. He was speaker of the house of representatives for eleven years; died at Medford, May 18, 1821, aged fifty-four. He married Lucy, daughter of Judge Oliver Prescott, of Groton, (brother of William Prescott, of Bunker Hill memory.) She still survives, in a green and honored old age. Her eldest daughter, Katharine, born 1793, is the wife of Abbott Lawrence, minister of the U. S. to Great Britain. The sons are, the Rev. Dr. Andrew Bigelow, born 1795, and John Prescott Bigelow, born 1797, now mayor of Boston.

JOHN BROOKS.

Sacred to the Memory of
JOHN BROOKS,
who was born in Medford, in the month of May, 1752,
and educated at the town school.
He took up arms for his country on the 19th of April, 1775.
He commanded the regiment which first entered the enemy's lines at Saratoga, and served with honor to the close of the war.
He was appointed Marshal of the District of Massachusetts
by President Washington;
and after filling several important civil offices,
he was, in the year 1816, chosen
Governor of the Commonwealth, and discharged the duties of that station for seven successive years, to general acceptance.
He was a kind and skilful physician;
a brave and prudent officer;
a wise, firm, and impartial magistrate;
a true patriot, a good citizen, and a faithful friend.
In his manners he was a gentleman;
in morals, pure; and in profession and practice,
a consistent Christian.
He departed this life in peace, on the 1st of March, 1825.
aged 73.
This monument to his honored memory
was erected by several of his fellow-citizens and friends, in the year
1825.

Below is an engraving of a monument about to be erected in Roxbury, in memory of John Eliot, the Apostle to the Indians.

TORREY MONUMENT AT MT. AUBURN.

TESTIMONIALS.

The following letters, relating to this work, have been voluntarily tendered to the author.

Hawthorn Cottage, Roxbury, May 2, 1851.

Dear Sir: I return you my sincere thanks for the volume you so kindly presented to me, containing "Inscriptions on the Gravestones in Northampton and other Towns in the Valley of the Connecticut River."

I am gratified to learn that you intend to publish, in three volumes, the epitaphs on Copp's Hill and other cemeteries in Boston. By such commendable efforts to perpetuate the names and characters of those adventurers and honored pioneers to whom we are indebted for civil and religious freedom, and all the blessings we enjoy under our admirable institutions of government, you will be distinguished as the literary Old Mortality of New England.

That you will be amply rewarded for the services you are so zealously endeavoring to render your countrymen, I cannot doubt, by the patronage they will extend to you.

With assurances of respect,

Your much obliged and most obedient servant,

H. A. S. Dearborn.

Thomas Bridgman, Esq.

Testimonials.

City Hall, Boston, January 2d, 1852.

In behalf of the city government, I take pleasure in acknowledging your donation of books to the free city library, consisting of a copy of your work entitled "Epitaphs from Copp's Hill Burial Ground, Boston," and a copy of your work entitled "Inscriptions on Gravestones in Northampton and Springfield."

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

JOHN P. BIGELOW,
Mayor.

MR. THOMAS BRIDGMAN.

At a meeting of Mount Lebanon Lodge, on the 8th of March, 1852,

It was voted unanimously that the thanks of the Lodge be tendered to Brother Thomas Bridgman, for the presentation of a copy of his work entitled "Epitaphs from Copp's Hill Burial Ground, Boston."

Copy of the record.

Attest, THOS. WATERMAN, Sec'y.

Massachusetts Lodge, Boston, 15 March, 1852.

BROTHER: I have the pleasure to inform you that, at a meeting of Massachusetts Lodge, at the date hereof, in consideration of the handsome and interesting volume presented by you, entitled, "Epitaphs from Copp's Hill Burying-ground," it was "Voted, That the thanks of this Lodge be presented by the secretary to Br. Bridgman, for his acceptable gift."

I am, respectfully and fraternally,

Your obedient servant,

J. Q. KETTELLE,
Sec'y of Mass. Lodge.

TO BR. THOMAS BRIDGMAN, Boston.

Boston, May 26, 1852.

Dear Sir: You are placing coming generations under obligations, to say nothing of the gratification the present will derive from your researches among the tombs.

Inscriptions in the burial-yards of Boston are becoming very indistinct. By accurately transcribing them, and giving a volume to the public and to posterity, you are really doing a great work, the full value of which will be appreciated in after times. Those quaint memorials on the old stones illustrate the tone of moral sentiment, religious character, and early history, of those who organized the institutions of the city and commonwealth, which are still the pride and glory of the people.

Allow me to express a hope that your efforts may be crowned by the approbation and patronage of the public.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

J. V. C. Smith.

Thos. Bridgman, Esq.

Boston, May 31, 1852.

Mr. Thomas Bridgman: —

Dear Sir: Please accept the thanks of the Massachusetts Historical Society, for your laborious and valuable work entitled "Epitaphs from Copp's Hill Burying-ground."

Very respectfully yours,

Joseph B. Felt,

Librarian.
